

Saga of the Class of '64
Written by Shirley Gallaher Dearing

*It was our 35th reunion and all over town
Everyone was excited for there were old friends to be found
On Saturday morning we met at Stillwell
For coffee, doughnuts, and socializing as well
Then from there we hurried to ride on the float
What a nostalgic display ... Janice and those helping certainly should gloat
Then it was time for our dinner, so to the Chick Inn we went
A place full of memories of fun times that were spent
We gathered from near and far just to reminisce*

For coffee, doughnuts, and socializing as well

Then from there we hurried to ride on the float

What a nostalgic display ... Janice and those helping certainly should gloat

Then it was time for our dinner, so to the Chick Inn we went

A place full of memories of fun times that were spent

We gathered from near and far just to reminisce

I'll mention the names and I apologize for the ones I miss

There were Janice, Susan, Tommy, and Ken

And Sharon, Shirley, Stu, and Carolyn Ann

Wilbur, Nancy, Lola, and Wayne

Cheryl, Carla, Sharla, and James

Dwight, Butch, Marsha, and Peggy

Robert, Randy, Brenda, and Jerry

There were Phillip, Billy, Judy, and Susie

And those with us in spirit -- I know of at least three

There were Janice, Susan, Tommy, and Ken
And Sharon, Shirley, Stu, and Carolyn Ann
Wilbur, Nancy, Lola, and Wayne
Cheryl, Carla, Sharla, and James
Dwight, Butch, Marsha, and Peggy
Robert, Randy, Brenda, and Jerry

There were Phillip, Billy, Judy, and Susie
And those with us in spirit -- I know of at least three
On Sunday morning most of us will go on our way
Taking with us the memories of the past and today
So I wish each of you the best that life holds in store
And I salute all of you in the class of '64